MEMORANDUM FOR: Mr. Colby

SUBJECT: Disposition of USIB Committee Functions in a Reorganized Structure

1. Reference is your note:

"Re your USIB reorganization proposals - the geographic approach is certainly appealing, but I rather wonder at the loss of the functions in the list at the clip. Don't we need a permanent center to push studies and actions such as these?"

[The "clip" referred to was at Tab E of the DCI's USIB notebook, entitled "Examples which reflect or describe projects and activities of the USIB committees".]

2. At Tab A is a tabulation showing the proposed disposition of each of the items listed in the DCI's USIB notebook as representing projects and activities of 11 of the USIB committees which would be disestablished following DCI approval of the proposed USIB geographic committee structure. It is recognized that USIB committee projects vary over time, but the examples listed are considered to be representative.

3. No listing is included for the new Human Resources Committee, functions and activities of which are still being evolved. [This committee is not mentioned in the DCI's USIB notebook.]

4. During development of the IC proposal to eliminate most of the existing USIB committee and establish seven geographic committees, considerable attention was devoted to the specific functions and activities of the present committees and to their proper disposition. It was this examination which led to the recommendation that the functions of the Security Committee be enlarged, that the IHC be retained, and that no action be taken concerning the Watch Committee pending DCI decision on proposals being drafted for handling the watch reporting function.

NRO review(s) completed.

TOP SECRET

5. As the listings at Tab A indicate, some of the present USIB committee functions would be assumed by the geographic committees, some would be transferred to the new Security Committee, some would become the responsibility of the IC staff, and some would be taken over by line intelligence organizations which would then provide a service of common concern.

6. A basic reason for development of the USIB committee reorganization proposal is to provide for a committee structure which will better support the DCI in his community management role. An argument can be made for reorientation of the "topical" and "functional" committees such as now exist, but we concluded that a geographic orientation for the basic committees would be more conducive to providing support for the DCI and for USIB's advisory role. Some of the "educational" value of the present committees will be lost, but we expect the gains in other aspects of the committee activities to more than compensate for any such loss.

7. Overall, it can be expected that personnel who have been active in a particular committee will argue for the continuation of that committee because it represents an established bureaucratic pattern for accomplishing certain functions. That does not mean the same functions cannot be handled by a geographically-oriented committee, nor does it necessarily mean that some of the functions need to be handled by a committee of any kind.

8. The proposal is intended to provide a committee structure which will accommodate all of the important functions now handled by the USIB committees which actually require committee action rather than action which is more properly the responsibility of the DCI's staff, operating organizations and program managers.

9. In summary, and as a direct answer to your question, I do not consider that any of the functions now handled by the USIB committees which would be disestablished would be lost. The same functions will be handled, but by committees or other mechanisms different from those now operative. The "push" for studies and actions such as are now listed in the DCI's USIB notebook will come from the DCI, his staff, and the chairmen of the new committees.
